Precis (1 or 2 sentences; include classification):

South Africa dominates a network of economic ties to neighboring countries, which provide significant economic benefits to all of South Africa's closest neighbors except Angola. For South Africa itself, regional economic relations afford an important source of net foreign exchange earnings, migrant labor, some protection against economic sanctions by virtue of the damage that they would do to neighboring states, and a conduit for maintaining working relationships with countries that do not recognize the Republic diplomatically.
